A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on November 15, 2010 has been entered.

Claim 23, 24, 37, 39-50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Claim 37 has been amended to call for dough that is made from an admixture of konjac glucomannan and animal based protein concentrate. There is no support in the specification, as originally filed, for the preparation of dough that contains only konjac glucomannan and animal based protein concentrate. The combination of konjac glucomannan and animal based protein is described in the example III in the last two paragraphs of page 6 but the combination is not described as dough. The bread described in example IV is made from dough but it is not prepared by the same method as described claim 37 and further there is no indication that the dough is made without water, milk or oil, as required in the last paragraph of page 8.

Examiner does not understand how dough can be have a flour texture, as required in claim 45.

There is no support in the specification, as originally filed, for the preparation of flour, as set forth in claim 48 from the sole combination of konjac glucomannan and animal based protein. The disclosure in example III provides a host of additives that may be required for the combination of konjac glucomannan and animal based protein to form a flour.

The rejection of the claims over Tye has been withdrawn in response to the amendments to the claims.
